Each one of us is but a tiny star in the vast universe of humanity. Close yet distinct, we shine forth a light of wisdom and knowledge which bathes the world in a rich splendor. Though at times the lights of some may blind us while the lights of others may cast a dark shadow, we are all united by our common humanity, for we share a spirit which transcends the boundaries of time and space. Only the foolish boast that they may shine separately from the whole, for he who cuts himself off from the rest of humanity is like a solitary star which soon becomes engulfed by the darkness of ignorance and hatred. Separate, we are but tiny points of light which shine dimly like the stars from some far off galaxy. Yet if we should only unite and form a common bond, our individualities shall merge for the common good and the distinct lights shall become as a single bright star. This shining star of fraternity and co-operation shall thus serve as a radiant beacon which shall illuminate the path to a better tomorrow for ourselves, our people, and for all mankind.

Class Prophecy

On June 30, 1999, I, Inspector Surenol Holmes, began my investigation into "The Case of the Missing Class of '79." I arrived at the scene of the crime (i. e., Science High) where 20 years earlier the offense had been perpetrated. Searching the deserted guidance office, I found a list of the names of the students along with other pertinent information. With these clues in hand, I rushed out of the building to set out after the culprits.

Losing no time, I took the next supersonic transport to Florida. While on the plane, I was entertained by Sharon Anderson, the stewardess, and Clinton Kinsler, the chief steward, who were hustling in the aisle to the disco beat of the hottest band around, Eugene Leary and his Sour Notes. One of the guitarists in the band was Kenney Treadwell who still wishes he could play guitar like Jimi Hendrix. Heading toward the cockpit to lodge a complaint against the music, I found Micheal Baulkman at the helm with Troy Caldwell who was casually dismantling the plane's control console. Unfortunately, I could not reach Mike at that time because he was having delusions that he was a World War II flying ace shooting down the Red Baron over Vietnam. Therefore, I promptly parachuted from the plane.

After landing in one of the shark tanks in the Marineland Aquarium in Miami, I found Damian Robinson feeding the man eating dolphins with the chemical extracts from four year old boys. With him was the eminent oceanographer, Anthony D. Clark, who was trying to figure out why his pet fish died when he took it out of the water.

Knowing that I wouldn't get much information from those two, I left and took a submarine to France. After arriving in Marseille, I soon discovered that Beverly Fulton, Martha Jacinto, and Athena Thomas were residing in a $16 billion chateau which had been originally designed by Ms. Fulton for psychiatric patients. Upon visiting the chateau, I was informed by Beverly that Martha (who was a famous pediatrician) was out chasing little French babies around the French countryside so that Sheila Jones, a noted occupational therapist, could find jobs for them. Nevertheless, I was able to meet Athena who was busily typing the pages of her autobiography entitled "Mein Kampf Part II."

Still unable to find the guilty party, I took the fastest shuttle that I could find to the planet Mars where I came upon Vernon Copeland and Samuel Crawford who were on trial for designing too many computers (Sam was also accused of being a Russian spy). The case was presided by Judge Alice Mathis with the infamous Micheal Campbell as prosecuting attorney and with Ms. Terry Pringle acting as council for the defense. Unfortunately, the trial didn't turn out as expected, but I was able to learn the whereabouts of the other ex seniors from Kevin Toler, the mortician, after the defendents were executed.

After returning to earth, I paid a visit to Kelvin Cameron, president of Cruel Bunch Chemical Industries, Inc., to gather more information. Upon refusing my request, Kelvin engaged me in mortal combat. For hours we delivered powerful taytums to each other until I uttered the mystical words, "Don't even try it!" which left Kelvin helpless. After his defeat, Kelvin showed me his laboratory where Harold Liggins, Myron Ash, and Lucette Brown were trying to synthesize a chemical reaction which would successfully resurrect Adolf Hitler and Lady Macbeth, the founders of the Cruel Bunch.

After I left Kelvin's firm, I continued my unending search for the seniors of the Class of '79. But you may ask, "What crime have they committed?" Well, on the seniors' last day at Science High, the entire teaching staff was viciously murdered in the most brutally destructive food fight in all of recorded history. So, I shall not rest until I have tracked down the villain who shouted those infamous and despicable words, "Food fight!!!"

CLASS OF 1979

Dedication

We the Class of 1979 wish to dedicate our yearbook to Sr. Shirley Corbliss; our V. P. and Mr. Robert Celiano, our Social Studies teacher, for their understanding, and devotion to Science High.

Assisting us in these ways and many more make the class of 1979 proud to honor them in our yearbook, the Synergist.

Last Will and Testament

We the second graduating class of Science High School would like to offer these words in remembrance of us. They express our outlooks, appreciation and love to all at Science High School.

To the administration: the knowledge of knowing how to do things the right way.

To Ms. Barnes: an art room with all the proper facilities for a better art program and a better yearbook.

To the gym teachers: a gym built especially for them.

To the guidance counselors: hope for all in the near future.

To the history teachers: an entire bus load of students to take with you to Washington.

To Sis. Corbliss: 5 bottles of aspirin for the ones you never saw us take.

To Officer Joe: a six pack of Pinkchampale and a bathroom pass.

To Mr. Pettiti: faith that you'll one day find a school that's just right for you.

To the underclassmen: good advice: Although you may not get along with your teachers, do the work well, then come back with a cordial smile and tell them a piece of your mind.

To the Senior Class Sharon Carpenter leaves her fantastic body.

To Dwayne F.: a barber for life.

To Harold L.: a woman he can control.

To Myra: a buttercup.

To Damian: a complete matching suit and a little adulthood.

To Shelia: the man of her dreams . . . M. J. . . .

To Mischa: a funfilled year at Science High.

To Sam: Lucette to give you some experience.

To Henry: a giant pack of peppermints.

To Michael C.: the arms of an octopus to help you hold K. F.

To The Cruel Bunch: the corpse of Adolf Hitler, Hell & Fire.

To the school: a monument of the Cruel Bunch, a new guard and thicker walls.

To all: peace and inspiration to make it through another year.

To Science High: We leave, We leave, We leave . . . . .

1979 Synergist

The Science High student as he is seen and known by his fellow students is the story told by the 1979 Synergist. It is a tale which the staff hopes will be just as clear ten years from now as it is today. Many are the hours and efforts that make this book. Junior students were part of this staff; they are training for next years yearbook. Deadlines are a reality and a test for the Synergist staff: the reward comes in the printers ink.

BEST WISHES TO THE 1979 GRADUATING CLASS

Administration of

SCIENCE HIGH SCHOOL

To the Class of '79

May the road rise up
to meet you,

May the wind be always
at your back,

May the sun shine warm
upon your face,

And the rains fall soft
upon your fields,

And until we meet again

May GOD hold you in the palm of His hand.

TEACHING PHILOSOPHY

A teacher must know his stuff. He must know the pupils he intends to stuff. Above all, he must stuff them artistically.

—J. F. Rocco

Good, better, best; never let it rest, until you make your good your better and your better, best.

—Karen Eddings

The greatest goal of life is to know Christ and to be part of His Kingdom.

—Daisey Fletcher

A mi querida amiga, Maria A. Munoz, deseo todas las bendiciones de "nuestro amigo".—Nikolai
